The American Library association wants 500,000 gift books, and 5,000 of these are to come from Vermont. Fiction is the chief need of the war library. There are half a million men under arms in France and Germany and many more in military hospitals on this side. These men are marking time and have more need of books than when fighting was going on. Will you not bring in to the Orleans library works of fiction in good condition, no magazines or paper covered books, before the first of May?
